Whether the large kite that has been floating above us during the day is used by the Herald Square moving picture people for obtaining local views for exhibition purposes or to locate best places for securing good wholesome candies for their candy machines does not seem to be definitely settled. The fact, however, remains that everybody for miles around saw it and conceded that it's a clever advertising medium and well worthy the splendid picture it announces. Tickets for evening performance at Red Cross Pharmacy.

At the opera house the Herald Square moving picture people have only been advertised here several days but everybody remembers the fine selections offered by this company last season. The subjects offered this trip are all new and include the very latest big feature sensations including the "Nihilists," "How Jones Lost His Roll," "Summer Boarders," "Extravagating," "The Deadwood Skipper," another laughable affair, "The Young Tramps," the only rival of the Lost Child, and many others. Tickets for tonight's performance at Red Cross Pharmacy.

A new counterfeit $10 United States bill is being circulated in Vermont. The bill is described as "Series of 1901, check letter C, plate number undecipherable, J. W. Lyons, registrar; Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer." The bill is said to be a pretty fair counterfeit. The most noticeable defect is in the pictures of Lewis and Clark. The portraits appearing flat owing to the absence of light and shade effects in the background. The buffalo is said to look as if it were shedding its coat. The color work is excellent, but the engraving is poor.
